Maloy attends UMSL Public Policy Certification Program NACCTFO professional certification program for county collectors, treasurers, and financial directors

Doris Maloy, Tax Collector of Leon County, FL, recently attended the legislative conference of the National Association of County Collectors, Treasurers and Finance Officers (NACCTFO) in Washington, D.C., March 4-5, 2011. The conference included continuing education courses in state and national treasury policy and management, offered by the Public Policy Administration Program at the University of Missouri-St. Louis (UMSL) as part of their Chancellor's Certificate program.

"The Chancellor's Certificate Program gives elected and appointed collectors, treasurers, and finance officers an opportunity to broaden their knowledge base and to share innovative practices," said Dr. Brady Baybeck, Director and Associate Professor of the Public Policy Administration Program at UMSL. "Attendees leave the sessions with great ideas to help their offices run more effectively."

Topics including information technology, human resources, and financial management were covered in the coursework. By participating in the classes, Maloy demonstrated her commitment to public service and the desire to serve her county with the newest information.
